Didn't you know? Hungary is threatening to hold an immediate referendum on its European Union membership, if Brussels continues to force through the mandatory refugee quota plan.

The way to go, Mr Orbán! The way to go, abject coward! That's why there's no place for such states like Hungary in EU! Lousy spongers. If captain never leaves a sinking ship, stinking rats run first. The moment Europe has one of the most challenging crisis in decade and needs unity so much... there an idiot appears that think he has received a slightest opportunity to wrangle over his shares in crisis and to blackmail the whole Europe. Thanks for everything (for

The EU is in crisis.
Even Luxembourgs foreign minister warns of it's destruction.
Sometimes the people are blind. Do they really think their countries are alone better off?
Especially the little ones...

Hungary are an independent state, they are free to either join or leave any international organisation--it's their business.

Well, there was only one period of time when Poland, in her over a thousand-year history, lost more people than after joining the EU--1939 to 1945. Would we be better off with banks, trade and media still in Polish hands? Would we be better off with heavy industry not being destroyed, shipyards and factories not closed? Would Poland be better off with 3 million young, mostly educated people, working for her well-being instead of that of Great Britain, France or Germany? I cannot answer these questions, it's a complicated matter, but I can answer yours, BB--yes, they probably think their countries are better off alone.

But I can....you are describing your commie past perfectly! Remember....was great, wasn't it!

Not really--please notice that I wrote "working for HER well-being" not "for Soviet Union's well-being".

But at least Soviets didn't try to settle CMEA countries with Muslims, you have to give them that; and the commies did rebuild our country from the ashes after WW2, and the population grew from 23 to 40 million. I shiver when I think what would have happened if the current politicians (no matter PO or PiS) had had to rebuild Poland after war--the idiots can't even build proper motorways, and for the last 25 years have been living off selling their commie past.

A big part of the Soviet Union was actually muslim, alone six of the 15 soviet republic had been fully muslim, millions of people.
But for Commies it totally didn't matter what god you are praying to, there was no god, period!
They for sure didn't differentiate between catholic Poles or muslim Tartars only between pro-commie and trustworthy or not.

These idiots have to build proper motorways (with EU money mostly mind you) because the commies haven't build them.
You are romanticizing the past Torqi, but if you prefer that you should stop being so scared of Muslims. Religion didn't matter at all back then, a real great equalizer... 😊

The trains with coal and meat that rolled from Poland to Soviet Union on a regular basis were not semantic trains.

It's not so much about romanticizing the past as for being hungry for some common sense. I am not scared of Muslims, I respect every man who worships God as long as he respects the laws and customs of my country. Actually, I feel more affinity to muslims than to liberal atheists. If those were hordes of atheists storming the gates of Europe, THEN I would be scared. 😊

Not surprising, religious people tend to be more conservative.
That's why it puzzles me why the german lefties are so adamant in getting as many backwards muslims into the country as possible.
I think there will be a nasty surprise when it sinks in that these nice people have no interest in women equality, gays, lesbians, homo-marriage, gendertalk etc....that they are culturally and traditionally where Germany once was about 100 years back.

You are right, BB--perhaps some greater good will come from the recent influx of muslim immigrants to Europe after all. 😊

It looks like...
